We think it quite possible that he has more confidence in Davis than is warrantable, and more faith in the patriotism of these rebel leaders than facts will justify; but that he feels any sympathy with their deeds, we don't believe.

The Abolitionlets, however, will assail every man who seeks an adjustment by a compromise. It is precisely what they don't want. They feel more horror of it than they do of war. ondence of the Louisville Democrat.] CAMP CUMBERLAND FORD, )

March 28, 1862. Editors Democrat-Gentlemen: Since my last, the dull monotony of our camp has been broken by an excursion to the farfamed Cumberland Gap. About ten o'clock, on last Thursday night, our regiment received orders to be ready at daylight, the next morning, with four days' rations in haversacks and one blanket in knapsack, to oross the river. Such an order, at that nnusual hour, soon created quite a stir in camp. Sergeants were busy drawing the requisite amount of rations-"hard bread Gap. By twelve o'clock, however, all was quiet again, and our boys as fast locked in the arms of slumber as though there was nothing unusual on hand for the morrow. At four o'clook the "reveille" aroused us from our slumbers and dreams, and soon all was bustle again in the preparation of breakfast. By daylight we were ready and soon commenced crossing the river. The First East Tenneseee took the lead, followed by the Seventh Kentucky, then a section of Captain Wetmore's battery, and the Six teenth Ohio and Forty-ninth Indiana bringing up the rear. In this order, we took up and continued our line of march, until against hope; and she would now support the extravagance and insubordination at about four o'clock in the evening, when we arrived within about two miles of the Gap, which place we reached by a circuitous route, and commenced a reconnuissance. Night soon coming on, and the snow falling rapidly, warned us to look out for a camp

After establishing our pickets, we retired to a ravine near by, and, partaking of a hasty supper, threw ourselves upon the damp ing, we were again astir, and soon the sound of musketry informed us that our pickets were already at work. The 16th Ohio and 1st Tennessee regiments sent out skirmlehers, while Capt. Wetmore, guarded by the 7th Kentucky, moved his two Parrott gnns to an eminence in front of and in full view of the Gap, and at a distance of about one mile from the enemy's work. Here we planted our two guns and opened a fire upon their works, which was briskly answered by them, and the oannonading was continued at short intervals throughout the entire day. Our skirmishers before noon had driven in all the rebels who had the temerity to appear outside of their "holes in the ground," killing and wounding several. We could see that our two Parrott guns, under the direction of the "little Captain," did considerable execution, the chells frequently bursting among their tents and inside their earthworks, making the poor devils scatter like rats, while their guns (and they have plenty) either fell short of us or passed harmlessly over our heads. When night came on, we again made our bed on the ground, within sight of the selves from a thrashing at Corinth, and we enemy, and the tired soldier was soon sound asleep, and, perhaps, dreaming of "home, sweet home." Early the following mornlng, having accomplished the object for which we started, namely, a general reconnoissance, and to ascertain the number, oaliber and position of their guns, we queitly withdrew, and took up the line of It is somewhat remarkable that not a single man was even wounded

WASHINGTON, April 3. Commissioners Holt, Davis and Campbell, in their report, present evidence showing that Gen. Fremont frequently declared to disbursing officers of the Government that he did not intend to be controlled by any laws or regulations; that he intended to cut red tape without reference to Washington. These declarations were made when Fremont was directing illegal payments of money. The Commissioners deem these acts and declarations as a violation of his oath of office and alarming in character. They say the see of Gen. Fremont himself prepared the way and led to immoral practices with part of his subordinates. They also say in conclusion, that, "having, in the fulfillment of a trust committed to us lifted the veil from a field of prodlgality, in subordination and demoralization, in the midst of which we have been toiling for several months, we have felt it incumbent upon us o point the department to the true causes of these disorders."

The Island 10 correspondent of the Chicago Times says:

We had an alarm last night which gave ns a little censation. The boat in which we domicillate lies close in shore, or rather where the shore once was. She nestled close up to the oottonwood thicket, and, but for the intervening boughs, might sail all over the country. We look out into the undergrowth a few rods, and see nothing but water and woods. Well, the watchman, peering into this labyrinth in the dim hours of the morning, discovered a red light ln the distance. All hands were called, and eyes were bent upon the mysterions signal-for such it seemed beyond a donbt. It hung among the branches of the trees, flickered its red light in silence and mystery. We all knew that nobody oculd penetrate the forest at the stage of the water that conjectured and wondered until ingennity was exhausted. I sat out on the deok and watched it after my companions had retired and were wrapped in slumber. There was a weird solemnity about the scene which attracted while it inspired an indefinable dread. There was the primeval forest in solitude and grandenr, the broad river rolling lts turbulent waters towards the coveted South, the arched canopy of heaven sprink led with bright lights, before which the little gleaming spark which shone in the forest paled to insignificance—all ocvered with the veil of darkness and silence. Near by lay the mailed host which waited for the conflict. The tramp of the sentinel oame indistinctly on the wind, the sound of hushed voices was heard now and then, and, of a sudden, a brazen voice on the flag ship pealed the hour. The note was taken up by the nearest and passed onward to the next; still onward it went, nntil it died in the distance, and four bells was passed. Silence resumed its sway, and one oculd almost fancy he heard whispered voices in the woods, and saw indistinct forms moving about the red light, which burned on with andiminished luster. If there were lurking bands of rebels prowling about to attack the boats, there was danger; but that only added to the weird mystery. If it had been a certainty, the interest would have departed under the instinct of self-preservation; but it was only a surmise. And here the mind naturally wandered off to the place where the opposing host lay intrenched in dally expectation of a fight for life. There as well as here were sleepless eyes, pacing sentinels, and the watchword of the night, passing away into the silent distance. There were alarmed watchers, perhaps, like myself, intent npon mysterious objects, and surmising evil from every sound.

light breeze brought the voices of their sentinels, orying "All's well." One could hardly help thinking that all's not well, when brother fights brother and blood comes face to face. The voice of the night was abroad in the restless and ever-moving river, in the solemn silence of the forest, in the whispered sighs of the wind, in the measured tramp of watchful men, in the steady gleam of that dim and mysterious light, which shone on until morning quenched its light. ### From Charleston.

The Hilton Read correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, writing on the 27th ult . save: Consternation is exhibited throughout the ity of Charleston, in consequence of some the back country. Goods and furniture, and everything valuable removable, have to points less exposed to a visit from the Yankees. Many men are anxions to leave, but they are compelled to remain and to take up arms to defend the town, but all are very fearful that the result will be disastrons to them. The news of the recent victories of Union arms has had a chilling influence npon the chivalry, and they begin to doubt the truth of their favorite axiom, that one South Carolinian can whip five and rebel are beginning to look nearly equal, even to ohlvalry itself. The dashing fights cessful attack on Newbern, in a neighbordepartment, where they retire as we advance, must satisfy them that we are not all cowards and boys. And I venture to say that the results of the next thirty days in this department will not strengthen their old orinions of ns.

Charleston ie reported as being surrounded by two lines of intrenchments, one of hich is within two miles, and the other about five miles from town. They are of immence size, well constructed, and requiring a large force to defend them. Very few guns have been mounted upon the works as yet; but the recent startling intelligence has set them to work again, and they are daily mount,ing guns.

About six hundred men garrison Fort Sumpter, and it is well prepared for a siege. That is about all the news the contrabands bring, except that they report provisions very soarce and high, in consequence of the number of soldiers in the town, and the Mr. Brownlow was introduced to the great difficulty in getting . npplies from the back country.

once inhabited by a population of which we have no record. Excavations in the shallow parts of the lakes show the remains of buildings constructed upon spiles, just as some of the inhabitants of the East Indies now live, with relies of tools, toys, fruits, and bread made of brnised grain; bones of animals slaughtered, some of whose species were extinot before the age of history. So fort belonging to the Union; that our perfect and plentiful are these remains that they prove a dense population and some alvancement in the arts of living.

> In the highlands of Scotland, at the birth of a child, it is said that the nurse takes a branch of the ash tree, one end of which she puts into the fire, and while it is burning receives into a spoon the sap which oczes from the other end; this she gives to the child, to be mingled with its food. It is supposed to impart wonderful virtue. Kings county, ireland, near Kenetry Church. is a famous ash, the trunk of which is now twenty-one feet ten inches in circumference When a funeral of one of the peasantry passes by this tree, the procession stops, the body is laid down for a few werds of prayer. Then each person casts a stone to increase the heap which has been accumulated over its roots. This is imagined to benefit both the dead and the living. There is an ancient saying, that "a serpent would rather oreep into the fire than over the twig of an ash tree." It is surprising how many of such follies will creep into men's minds. - The Druggist.

GEN. McCook SHELLING THE TOWN OF COLUMBIA, TENN .- We extract the following from a letter in the Cincinnati Times, dated Camp Thomas, north of Columbia, Tenn., March 22:

division under Gen. McCook was engaged in repairing the bridge lately destroyed by the rebels at Columbia. The first day they commenced work upon the bridge, parties of the citizens came down to the river, on the opposite side, and hiding themselves, would fire upon his men at battery when it was immediately submerg- McCook sent word to them that if his men were again fired upon that he would immorange. On the next morning, shortly after the men commenced work, they were again fired npon. Gen. McCook on being advised Advices from New Madrld confirm the of the fact, immediately recalled all the workmen from the bridge, and ordered the artillery into position, when he commenced to shell the town, which was continued for two or three hours without intermission, battering down their dwellings and creating quite a din and clatter about their ears. Concluding that they were then learned a tal has been ordered to be established at lesson, he ordered the firing ceased, and New Albany, Ind.; and Jefferson Barracks, again sent workmen to the bridge, since which time they have not been molested in their labors. Nothing like bringing the war to the doors of the Greeks, to teach them a lesson of civility and good manners. There has been entirely too much of a milkand-water policy extended to these deluded fanatics to effect any beneficial results. From the fostering care which has of late been extended to them, they have led themprecions to be spilled. Our troops could be shot down through etealth and treachery, and they were not to be brought to an ac count for it. But, thanks to the change, we are now getting commanders who are not afraid to enforce the rules of war, and have a little hilling now and then, by way of a gentle aimonition. THE FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE CITY. Griffin, 8; Hustetter, 1. We are permitted to make an extract from the Anditor's forthcoming report, now in the hands of the City Printer. Harry Stuckey, Esq., the able and indefatigable City Anditor, deserves well at the hande of his fellow-citizene for the olear record he has kept of the city finances, so in contrast with his predecessor, now in the rebel army. From this report it appears that the total assets of the city are five and a Griffin, 8; Hustetter, 0. quarter millione of dollare, her total llabilities, including the bonds due as far down as 1889, are only three and a haif millions, leaving the very handsome surplus of $1,725,565 53. The varione items of the assets will possess unusual interest in the eyec of our own oitizens, and command abroad a credit for the bonde of this city which few other communities can rival. The sinking fund, which is set apart by the charter for the liquidation of the bonded debts of the city, has increased since 1850, in spite of the constant drain upon it, until at this time it equals comething over seventy-five thousand dollars, which has been funded. The Election Yesterday. The election yesterday passed off quietly-no excitement in the city, as the strong Union sentiment prevailing had controlled everything. The candidates elected are all Union men. The resnit is generally satisfactory. The defeat of Mesers, Summere and May, Tax Coliectors in the Eastern District, is attributed to the fact that they were charged with being Secessionists. They were excellent collectors, and this impression abroad was sione, we suppose, the cause of their defeat.

NEW YORK, April 5.—A special dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer, dated Middleburg, via Baltimore, April 4, says: Col. Geary's advance encountered three hundred of Stewart's and White's cavalry and a force of infantry, at Middleburg, Va. last Saturday, and drove in the rebel pickets inside of the town. When he entered the town he discovered the infantry in retreat and the cavalry posted to make a stand.

A gun was placed to command the main street, and the 28th advanced by all the approaches to the town, while the main body rushed through the town with bayonets fixed and at a double-quick, driving the enemy before them. Col. Geary rushed at the head, and at one time was within two hundred yards of the rebel oavalry. Col. Geary's command sooned the country as far down as Aldie, from which piace he returned as far as Sinclairville, to assist at Winchester, but the battle was decided before it could get further.

The World says: "Private information derived from a responsible source, has reached here that Beauregard has been outflanked near Corinth, and compelled to fall rived at that place from the North, a few back, and that a heavy body of troops is between the enemy and Memphis. Glorious news," adds the World, "may be expected in a day or two."

Colonel D'Utassey, of the Garibaldi Guards, New York Volunteers, and the cfficers of General Blenker's Division who are under arrest, are hereby released from arrest and will join their regiments without delay and resume their respective commands. It is not believed in prominent circles that ex-Senator Gwin has arrived at Richmond, as announced from Fort Monroe. Late Richmond papers announce that Jeff. whost recent improvements, are nearly noiseless when in operation, run with the greatest case and rapidity, and are better adapted for general purposes and lantity use than any other. They are not liable to get out of order, are exceedingly simple, and are made expressly for real practical utility; they do every variety of sewing, from the finest woven tissue to the heaviest woolen goods, both tailoring and fine leather work. Any person may learn to operate them in a very short time. The great difficulty with all other old-style Machine Is too much complication, requiring so nuch constant adjustment, and such an amount of mechanical skill and ingeaulty to use them to advantage, as to render them of little comparative value.

But the Sewing Machines mannfactured by Greenman & True are not liable to these objections, as any person, on even a moment's examination, will readily discover. They will do more and better work than any other Machine ever offered to the public, making the most beautiful lock-stitch, alike on both sides. Send for an oif-hand specimen of sewing upon any material yon wish, and you will then see how it is done.
